Brandon has experience in a wide range of complex litigation matters including wrongful death, employment law, catastrophic injuries, class actions, and civil rights. He has significant experience representing governmental agencies and is familiar with unique challenges and legal issues that they present. Brandon knows that each case has unique needs that must be addressed individually. His practice provides the individual focus to each case necessary to provide the best result for his clients.

When he is not advocating for his clients, Brandon is currently learning to speak French. He also enjoys hiking and traveling and watching the Kansas City Chiefs in the fall and Marquette Golden Eagles.
